JANUARY 2021

A MONTHLY OF DRAVIDIAN LINGUISTIC ASSOCIATION OF INDIA

GOLDEN JUBILEE YEAR FOR DLA AND IJDL

The Dravidian Linguistic Association of India was officially founded in August 1971 (13-8-1971) and 2020 August to July 2021 is its Golden Jubilee period. Due to the Covid pandemic, we were unable to celebrate this proud event in a befitting manner. Though not in a grand way, the consensus is to organize a few functions abiding the protocols prescribed for Covid 19.

So also, 2021 is the Golden Jubilee year for the International Journal of Dravidian Linguistics. The first issue of the first volume of IJDL was published in 1972 January and thus in 2021 January it reaches 50 years. Hence, the 2021 January and June issues of International Journal of Dravidian Linguistics are going to be published as the Golden Jubilee Volume.

NEW YEAR GREETINGS

Our Best Wishes for a happy, prosperous and academically glorious New Year to all members, readers, contributors and well-wishers of DLA, ISDL, IJDL and DLA News.

SOME CONCERNS ON THE FUTURE OF CIIL

Padmashri Prof. D.P. Pattanayak, one of the senior linguists of India and the first Director of the Central Institute of Indian Languages, Mysore has expressed some concerns over the future of CIIL. For details, we request our readers to go through a copy of his appeal given in the right half of this page:

Sub.: Converting the CIIL into BBV and downgrading Qualitative Language Education by downgrading Linguistics.

Ref.: LD/MoE/Gol No. N. 7-6/2017-LCC(Pt.I), dt. 27-12-2020 and LD/MHRD/Gol F. No. 8-14/2019/L-II, dt. 18-02-2019

Dear Madam/Sir:

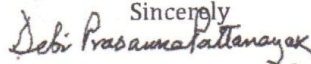

I am shocked to hear that the Govt. of India has set up a committee to work out the details of the transformation of the Central Institute of Indian Languages (henceforth, CIIL), Mysuru from the Govt. of India office to a Central University. The Central Institute of English & Foreign Languages, the Kendriya Hindi Sansthan and the Rashtriya Sanskrit Sansthan becoming a University is different from the CIIL, subordinate office of the Govt. of India becoming a University. The CIIL was established when the Govt. of India had no language department to work on language policy and planning and to monitor implementation of language programs of the Center and the States. It was visualised to act as a bridge between the Center and the States, Universities are autonomous bodies. No University can be a substitute of the CIIL.

Although the CIIL was a department of MHRD (now under Ministry of Education), the faculty was given the UGC scales after re-designating the positions as Deputy Director-cum-Professor, Senior Research Officer-cum-Reader and Junior Research Officer-cum-Lecturer. This way, the CIIL faculty could interact with the University faculty and update themselves while interacting with the State Govt. Officials. The Director was a member of the CABE as well as member of Boards of Governors of the Central Language Institutes and acting as the Advisor of the Govt. of India.

Unfortunately, the present day bureaucracy is in no position to convince the political leadership about the importance of the activities of the CIIL. That it is the fountain head of resources about language use in domains like education, administration and mass communication. It not only helped solving language problems of States but worked towards sustaining India's status as a single language, linguistic and cultural area.

Another unfortunate part is the fact that most of the members of the constituted committee are Sanskritist, and there is not a single reputed linguist among them having high academic credibility in linguistics. This reminds me the fact that the last two Directors of the CIIL are non-linguists. During the time of the last Director, the recruitment rules of the post of Director was revised so that a linguist can never be selected as Director. If my information is correct then the UPSC experts for the interview of the Director held in the 4th December 2020 were all Sanskritists and former bureaucrats and there was not a linguist having high academic integrity among them. This is a shame to all the linguists of the country. I have already written before that the CIIL without a linguist as a Director is like Indian Institute of Science (IISc, Bengaluru) heading a Social Scientist as a Director.

I strongly suggest that all the linguists bring this to the attention of the Hon'ble Prime Minister and the Minister and Secretary of Higher Education, Govt. of India. It is the duty and responsibility of every linguist, social scientist, and language scholar in the country to ensure restoration of the CIIL and save linguistics.

Sincerely

[Debi Prasanna Pattanayak]

Chapter 16: Kollam and Koṭuṇṇallūr

The paper proclaims that one cannot understand the ancient history of South India without knowing Muziris; similarly, one cannot also write the history of Travancore without the reference of Kollam. Such was the greatness acquired by these cities due to their glorious past. Though present Kollam is just a municipal town of Kerala, it has a 1400-year-old history. Kollam enjoyed all kinds of imperialistic glory up to 1743 C.E. Since time immemorial, we can find several references of Kollam in the writings of scholars like Ptolemy, Benjamin, Marco Polo, Iban Batuta etc., and Kollam has been represented as Kulam, Chulam, Kaulam etc. Apart from this, the first epigraphical reference of Kollam is seen in Kottayam-Syrian copper plate of King Sthanu Ravi where it is known as Kurakkēṇikollam. The name Koṭuṇṇallūr comes to light only after the 9th century, which is situated in the southern part of Cēṇṇuvāy Island. Again, the old port city Muziri was also in the southern part of Cēṇṇuvāy Island. Muziri has often been identified with modern Koṭuṇṇallūr by Caldwell, Gundert, Burnwell etc. The commonness between Kollam and Koṭuṇṇallūr lies in the etymology of their names. Both are derived from the word 'Kolla' meaning 'land' and it is believed that both the cities are the outcome of 'Kolla' caused by either flood or severe earthquake.

Chapter 17: Kannaki Worship in Kerala

The paper portrays a picture of Devi worship in Kerala with special reference to Kannaki accompanied with all its exuberant rituals and traditional customary rites. On a closer scrutiny, the mother goddesses of Kerala can be classified into three major groups such as Dravidian, Indo-Aryan and indigenous. Certain Goddesses like Orramulacci and Kali of Kerala are considered as Kannaki (heroine of the epic Cilappatikāram) who is worshipped by the aboriginal scheduled and tribal people as the goddess of Chastity. Poets like Iḷaṅko Aṭikaḷ often equate Kannaki with Aryan and Dravidian goddesses like Lakshmi, Durga and Koṇṇavai. Most of the Devi temples of Kerala follow non-Aryan rituals and are believed to be derived from Kannaki cult.

Chapter 18: Glimpses of Kerala Architecture in Maṇipravāla works

The paper deals with the historical records related to architectural plans and sketches practised in Kerala. The earliest record dates back to 823 C.E. which was the architectural plan of the famous Shiva temple of Kandiur. Since then several records on construction and consecration of temples and dwelling houses are found in literary works. For instance, Uḷḷunūḷi Sandēśam, a messenger poem, describes the architecture of Śrī Padmanābhaswāmi temple at Thiruvananthapuram. The paper continues with a detailed description of the architectural system followed by elaborate sketches and graphs.

Chapter 19: Gods and Goddesses of Tribes in Wayanad

The paper mainly deals with the gods and goddesses as worshipped by the Kuṛicciyar, Aṭiyān and Kuśavan communities, inhabited chiefly in Wayanad and partially in Kannur district. The chief deity of Kuṛicciyar tribe is Malakkāri who is the incarnation of Lord Shiva. The paper also gives a detailed description of the demigods and family deities. It also has an elaborate list of the families and the family deity associated with each family. Moreover, the paper provides a vivid picture of the main offerings, rituals and customs associated with the religious beliefs of each of the tribes. Most of the tribal Gods and Goddesses are originated from local legends prevailed in the geographical area where they have settled.

Adding to the growing body of writings on the literary and cultural history of the Indian subcontinent and a new dimension to Kerala studies, this compilation unravels diverse perspectives on Kerala culture through an employment of a range of disciplinary insights and methodologies. It engages mentalities with social texts, symbols with cultural representations and social codes with their performance and reception, in order to project people, language, literature and cultures in practice. This rich volume will remain a hallmark for several years and decades to come, for not only those researching on the region, but also for those seeking to enhance their understanding of Kerala, Malayalam, Malayaleeness and the notion of place and space in the Indian subcontinent.
